A FREE DELIVERY SYSTEM

Wanamaker Considering: the Application of the Citizens of Great Falls-The Demands of the Labor Unions.

Special to the Standard.

GREAT FALLS, April 19. The first assistant postmaster general has notified the people of Great Falls that their applica-tion for a free delivery system is under consideration by the department, and an inspector will be sent here soon to examine the claims of the city for the imme diate establishment of such service. It is certain that the postoffice officials here should receive aid in this line, as the facil-ities at their command are inadquate and the force too small to conduct the rapidly increasing volume of business satisfactor-

Steps are being taken here to place the race track in first-class condition in readiness for the approaching race meetings. Great Falls has one of the very best tracks in the state, and the board of trade, in connection with private individuals, propose to expend a considerable sum for the purpose of still further improving it, Thirty-two horses are in training at the grounds.

The Great Falls Bicycle club has adopted a uniform, to be of gray with black stripes, and colors black and gold. The question of a state tournament was discussed at length at a recent meeting. The club has the largest membership of any club in the state.
J. J. Hill while here a few days ago said that the Neihart extension into Castle would be built at once. While reticent as to statements made in the hearing of newspapermen, he spoke somewhat freely to those intimately known to him, and was heard to speak in glowing terms re specting the future of Great Falls.

The people of Great Falls are taking steps to organize a base ball association and at a recent meeting of the Great Falls Base Ball and Athletic association it was decided to incorporate said association with a capital stock of $10,000, to be divided into 2,000 shares of a par value of 85 per share. The association will have power to purchase and lease grounds, erect buildings, or in other ways to pro-mote the objects of the organization. The board of trustees for the first three months were: C. M. Webster, A. E. Dickerman, Henry Prentiss, jr., W. M. Hemler, H. J. Meile, jr., S. Alling, W. H. Gelsthorpe, C. H. Clark and E. A. Ringwald. It is in-tended to put the Great Falls team on a good footing for admission into the league and competition for the state pennant to be awarded the successful club at the end of the season. Twenty games will be played at each of the following cities during the summer: Helena, Butte, Great Falls, Anaconda, Missoula and Bozeman.

The labor question here may have an important bearing upon the immediate future of Great Falls. Many important public improvements are projected and there will be a large amount of building done provided employers are not bandi-caped by an exorbitant scale.

To a disinterested onlooker, the action taken by the union is most unwise and suicidal at this time. The decline of silver threatens to paralyze the whole mining and milling industry, so far as that metal is concerned, for a time at least, for there seems little hope of a rebabilitation of the great interests involved in the extraction and reduction of silver ores. The general closing down of mines and works now impending, will throw thousands of men employment, and the labor market is sure to be surfeited in a short time. The agricultural and stock interests will feel the depression and will be unable to furnish employment to per cent, of the enforced idle classes. Under existing circustances the present scale of wages can not long be maintained. and the outlook is extremely discour

While a compromise is still confidently hoped for here, there are many member of the union opposed to any form of concession and it may be left for the force of circumstances to solve the trying problem.

That almost everything in the form of public works is likely now to be arrested seems entirely probable.

INSTINCT OR INTELLIGENCE? A Rather Singular Story About Language

Among Dogs. From a Lawrence, Kan., special.

Probably the most convincing and remarkable evidences that animals can talk to each other was witnessed near here a few days ago on the farm of William Seyaccustomed to remain in the barns and lers 1.

have become firm friends with the horses. | Gove To such an extent has this friendship progressed that when any of the horses or either of the dogs have been away from home for any time, immediately on their return they rush together and rub noses and give other evidences of delight at

The dogs and horses go to the pasture together and return home at evening in company. This remarkable and close friendship has been noted by many and much commented upon, but the climax was reached when one of the dogs came rushing from a small piece of timber about half a mile from the barn. He ran hurriedly up to the other dog and whined and barked in a queer manner and then ran to the house. The second dog at once jumped to his feet and started off on a run to the woods as fast as he could go. The first dog hunted around the place until he found Mr. Seymore, and then by barks and strange antics attracted his attention and started back toward the timber. Mr. Seymore paid little attention to him until he was told what had occurred at the barn, where the two dogs apparently held conversation, and then he followed to the woods. The dog went straight into the woods. The dog went straight into the woods, and there Mr. Seymour found that one of his horses had fallen down in a small water course which was so narrow and steep that it was impossible for the animal to rise.

The horse was lying perfectly still, while

The horse was lying perfectly still, while the second dog was sitting by its head licking its face and showing by its attentions that it intended to comfort the horse all that was in its power. The fact that the horse was lying in an out-of-the-way place, with the additional fact that the second dog did not hesitate, but went directly to where it had fallen, was plain evidence of the fact that the first dog had told the story and given directions for finding the horse that was in trouble.

KNOWN BY THEIR DOGS. One Way to Pick Out an Actress in

From the Pittsburg Dispatch

The average actress will not go on the road these days without a dog. It may be an ugly pug, a dainty poodle, or a big Newfoundland, but irrespective of the breed the canine is obnoxious to first class hotel proprietors, and as a rule gets the players into no end of trouble. Still the comely creatures will have them, even if they come high. Bernhardt and Patti have managed to get a great deal of ad-vertising out of their dogs, and this is probably the reason why they carry them. Indeed, the French actress has been re-fused admission to a number of hotels on account of her menagerie. In Pittsburg the Anderson is the only botel where a positive ban exists against animals of all kinds. Four-footed beasts in particular are not wanted, and the rule would not be broken for President Harrison.

Last Monday morning Rose Coghlan, with a poodle in her arms, had scarcely alighted from her carriage in front of the hotel when the eagle eye of Mr. Bonneville, the clerk, sighted the dog, and a bellon was sent to inform her that the little brute would not be allowed to stay in the house. A parley ensued, and then, with a tear and a sigh, the actress and poodle parted company for the week. The dog was sent with the maid to live at a cheaper

Some actresses, knowing the peculiariies of hotel men, adopt shrewd devices to smuggle the canines into the house. Be-atrice Cameron, leading lady for Mansfield, is one of these. She stopped at the Anderson during the holidays, and was there for half a week when the dog was betrayed by accident. He was a small pup, and Miss Cameron had prepared an innocent-looking basket as a kennel for him. It was lined on the inside with wool, and when the lid was closed the basket would pass the closest scrutiny from lynxeyed hotel clerks. It so happened at the Anderson, and even Chief Clerk Crosby, as sharp as he is, was fooled by the clever

The basket was placed on the office counter while she registered, and the clerk wondered what kind of fruit the lady carried in the receptacle. Visions of grapes. oranges, peaches, etc., loomed up before him, and he mentally congratulated Miss Cameron on her good sense in carrying a lunch while traveling. But the animal's own friskness gave him away a few days later. He couldn't resist the temptation to punt his head playfully out of the bas ket while a servant was in the room. His indiscretion cost him his lodging in the hotel, and Mr. Dog was promptly shipped with the maid to another hotel.

When Bernhardt's manager wrote to the Duquesne for rooms for the great Sara he apologetically added that the newspaper reports to the contrary, she only had one dog, and he could stay in the baggage room. On this condition Bernhardt was accepted, and she gave the hotel people very little trouble during the week.

The discovery created great interest among old mining men, who gathered around the spot in the crowd. One expressed the opinion that some of the richest ore ever mined lies right under the city, and said that if the men who have the scheme on foot to tunnel under the city carry out their plan, they will find a har fortune awaiting them.

Warde the Favorite.

BUTTE, April 19.—Frederick Warde' engagement is an assured financial seccess. Calkins' store was besieged by an ager throng to-day to secure tickets for his play, and in a few hours nearly every seat was sold for the "Lion's Mouth," and a large sale also for the two succeeding nights. Manager Maguire says he will insist on Warde's playing a week next season. Three nights is too little for Fred Warde in Butte.

OLD TIMES, OLD FRIENDS, OLD LOVE.

There are no days like the good old days— The days when we were youthfu!
When humankind were pure of mind
And speech and deeds were truthful;
Before a love for sordid gold
Became man's ruling passion.
And before each dame and maid became
Siave to the tyrant fashion!

There are no girls like the good old girls—
Against this world I'd stake 'em'.
As buxom and smart and clean of heart
As the Lord knew how to make 'em'.
They were rich in spirit and common sense,
And piety all supportin':
They could bake and brew, and had taught school, too.
And they made the likeliest courtin'!

There are no boys like the good old boys—
When we were boys together?
When the grass was sweet to the brown bare feet.
That dimpled the laughing heather;
When the pewee sung to the summer dawn
Of the bee in the billowy clover.
Or down by the mill the whip-poor-will
Echoed his night song over.

There is no love like the good old love—
The love that mother gave us?
We are old, old men, yet we pine again
For that precious grace—God save us!
So we dream and dream of the good old times,
And our hearts grow tender, fonder,
As those dear old dreams bring southing gleams
Of Heaven away oil yonder.

Point, located on the Wisconsin Central lines, at the gateway to the vast forest region which extends north to Lake Superior, a distance of 200 miles without a break, on account of its vast lumber interests. The Wisconsin river, to which the lumbermen have given the familiar and somewhat affectionate title of "Old Wiscons," not alone acts as a lumber feeder to the city by furnishing through its numerous tributaries an outlet for thousands of acres of pine in the upper country, but it furnishes a water power that is second to that only of Neenah and Menasha, which cities are also located on the "Central." Millions of feet of lumber are cut every year, giving employment to hundreds of men. In addition to the lumber trade, it has numerous other manufactories; it is here where the large car shops of the Wisconsin Central lines are located.
